DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claims 1-10, it is not clear if the applicant is referring the cooling fluid as the first fluid and/or second fluid. Furthermore, it is not clear how exactly does the cooling fluid operate in relationship to the brake booster. It appears that the cooling fluid flows from a compressor (K1) to a condenser system (K3) and back to the compressor or to the brake booster (F3) and then back to a conduit between the compressor and condenser.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cho (KR 98050853).

Regarding claim 1-10, Cho discloses a braking device including an electrical control circuit (fig. 3), other brake components (13) and a brake booster (1) fitted with an air conditioning circuit (fig. 2) containing a cooling fluid, compressor (5) and a condenser system (6), wherein the cooling fluid flows from a compressor (5) to a condenser system (6) to the brake booster (F3) and then back to a conduit (2') (please note that such cooling fluid is circulating through out the system (not shown) thus it is understood that such cooling fluid must return back to the condenser).

Cho discloses all claimed limitations as set forth above but fails to explicitly disclose the fluid return line of the booster to be connected to the conduit between the compressor and condenser as claimed. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the fluid return line from the booster to the conduit between the compressor and condenser, since it has been held that rearranging parts of an invention involves only routine skill in the art. In re Japikse, 86 USPQ 70.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
